Bringing the Ecosystem Together Strengthening Primary Healthcare in India

WISH Foundation brought together an assemblage of distinguished experts representing the healthcare ecosystem at the 7th edition of the Sankalp Forum on April 9 at Vigyan Bhawan. The high level panel showcased promising innovations, garnered interest and combined public and private energies to identify actionable and potential solutions to strengthen the primary healthcare in India.

Issues

- Primary healthcare system, the first point of contact for the Base of the Pyramid population, is largely disease-focussed with little emphasis on systems efficiency
- Acute Shortages of Human Resources and inefficient management of the facilities. There is no near term solution within the public health system
- Interest among the public and the private sector to join hands, however lack of role clarity and trust deficit prevents successful partnerships
- Despite increasing emphasis on innovations the readiness and preparedness to absorb and integrate innovations and new technology is not sufficient.

“70% resources are in the public sector whereas only 30% delivery, while 70% delivery takes place in private sector with only 30% of the resources.... What WISH is doing is what India needs-bringing different players together”
